

Russell's paradox

In a small town, there was a barber. One day, he said,

“I will shave everybody who does not shave himself”

Russell's paradox

In a small town, there was a barber. One day, he said,

“I will shave everybody who does not shave himself”

Does the barber shave himself?